

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

It's been an interesting couple of weeks ...

Learning Outcome

Use expressions about relationships and feelings in a range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- How long have you known your best friend?
- How long do you think it takes to know someone well? Why?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about social activities, feelings and reactions.
- I can talk about things I have been doing and things I have done.
- I can express complex statements using words like who, that or which.

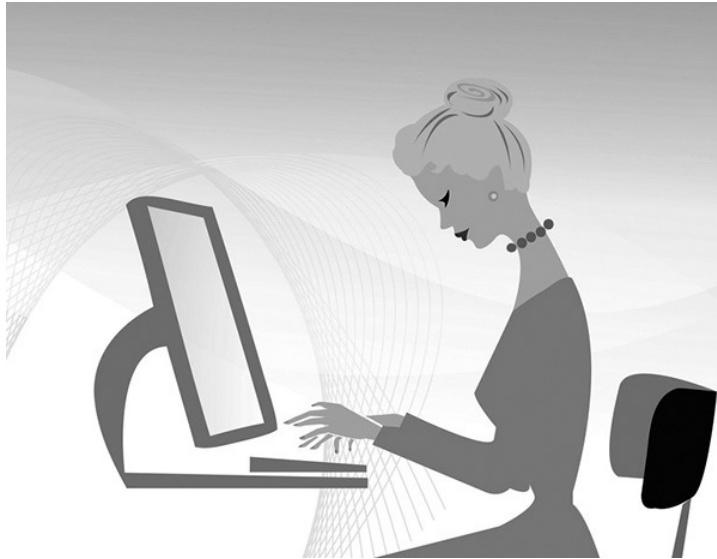

Let's Explore!

Peter writes an e-mail to his mother. He needs motherly advice.

* "Motherly" is an adjective. It describes the caring and loving characteristics of a mother.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Dear Mom,

I've been wanting to write to you for a while now, but I've been so busy with life and work lately! Actually, work hasn't really kept me busy in the past couple of weeks. My sentimental life has been giving me a headache, though!

I joined an online dating site called Tender. Sally thought it was something that I could use to try to meet new people. True enough, I've met several girls online who thought that our conversations were amusing. I was so excited to know that they were entertained by the things that I was writing. Sally always says that laughter is the thing which gets people most comfortable on a first date. So I thought that was a good sign ...

So far, my first dates have been disasters! The first bar that we went to was too loud, and I could barely hear what my date was saying. It felt like a very awkward and tiring evening. By the time I came home I was knackered, as Vanessa says.

Something might have changed since last week. I have been talking to this girl since Monday, and we have so many things in common! I just hope she's not out of my league ...

Love,

Peter

Let's Practice!

Peter shares his feelings.

Instructions: Read to the text again. Match column A with column B to correctly complete the sentences. Practice saying the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

COLUMN A

1. I joined an online dating
2. I was so excited to know
3. The first bar that we went
4. It felt like a
5. By the time I came
6. I just hope this girl

COLUMN B

- a. home I was knackered.
- b. is not out of my league.
- c. to was too loud.
- d. very awkward and tiring evening.
- e. that they were entertained by my profile.
- f. site called Tender.

Let's Practice!

Peter reflects about his recent experience.

Instructions: Choose a word from the box to correctly complete the sentence.

Word Bank

- been wanting
- have changed
- kept me busy
- have been
- 've been
- been giving

- a. I've (1)_____ to write to you for a while now, but I (2)_____ so busy with life and work lately!
- b. Actually, work hasn't really (3)_____ in the past couple of weeks.
- c. My sentimental life has (4)_____ me a headache, though!
- d. So far, my first dates (5)_____ disasters!
- e. Something might (6)_____ since last week.

Extension Activity

Role-play a situation where you have something incredible to tell your friends.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Write a dialogue (12-14 lines) with a friend.
- Choose between 2 characters. The first character has something very important to say. It can be funny, incredible, something about a relationship, etc. ...
- The second character asks questions and wants to know more details.
- Remember to use the Present Perfect and Present Perfect Continuous tenses.
- Remember to use relative clauses for long sentences.
- Exchange roles.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I talk about complex subjects in long sentences.

☐ ☐

I talk about feelings, reactions and social activities.

☐ ☐

I role-play a dialogue with a partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- amusing (adjective): able to entertain e.g. I've met several girls online who thought that our conversations were amusing.
- entertained (adjective): feeling enjoyment and amusement e.g. I was so excited to know that they were entertained by the things that I was writing.
- laughter (noun): the action and sound of laughing
e.g. Sally always says that laughter is very important on a date.
- tiring (adjective): causing someone to feel exhausted
e.g. It felt like a very awkward and tiring evening.
- in common (expression): sharing many interests
e.g. I have been talking to this girl, and we have so many things in common!
- knackered (adjective): extremely tired (British English)
e.g. By the time I came home I was knackered, as Vanessa says.
- out of my league (expression): I don't feel good or adequate enough for a person I like romantically
e.g. I met a very nice girl last night. I just hope she's not out of my league.

Learning Points

Subject and Object Relative Clauses

You use relative clauses when you want to make it clear which person or thing you are talking about.

The relative pronouns who, which and that begin a relative clause.

who refers to people

which refers to things

that refers to either people or things

In conversation, you usually use that, rather than which or who.

You put the relative clause immediately after the noun it talks about.

A subject relative clause describes the subject of the clause.

Example:

The person who texted me wanted to know where I was.

Which person? The person who texted me.

The clause who texted me follows person - the noun it describes.

An object relative clause describes the object of the clause.

Example:

Could you give me the mug that is over there?

Which mug? The mug that is over there.

Example	Clause	Relative Pronoun	Type of Relative Clause
Laughter is the thing which gets people most comfortable on a first date.	which gets people most comfortable on a first date	which	subject
I've met several girls online who thought that our conversations were amusing.	who thought that our conversations were amusing	who	object
The first bar that we went to was too loud.	that we went to	that	subject
They were entertained by the things that I was writing.	that I was writing	that	object

Learning Points

Present Perfect Continuous vs Present Perfect Tenses

You use the Present Perfect tense to talk about a past action or an action that began in the past that is connected to the present in some way.

You use Present Perfect Continuous tense to describe:

- a single activity that lasts a long time, and
- an action that is repeated over a long period of time.

You can use the Present Perfect tense to talk about experience. When you use the Present Perfect tense, you think about the past and present together. There is some connection between what happened in the past and now.

You can use the Present Perfect Continuous tense when a long activity has just stopped.

To emphasize the action, use the continuous form.

- I've been wanting to write to you for a while now.
- I have been talking to this girl for a few days.

To emphasize the result of the action, use the simple form.

- Something might have changed since last week.
- So far, my first dates have been a disaster!

Subject	Has/Have	Been	Verb+ing
I	have	been	wanting to write for a while now.
I	have	been	talking to this girl since Monday.

- You use FOR to talk about how long an action has been happening (a week, 2 days, five hours, six years, etc.).
- You use SINCE to talk about when the action started (2010, Monday, she was a child).

Examples:

- I've been wanting to write to you for a while now, but I've been so busy with life and work lately!
- I have been talking to this girl since Monday, and we have so many things in common!

